

I object to both blood, violence, explicit sexual content and gross scenes such as the CSI programs which, without warning run a close up on someone's mutilated body parts. I know they are just dummies but the children don't. They do not need to be exposed to that and frankly I don't either. They can just use words or shadows to make a point but who in their right mind, with exception to medical students, needs to see our internal organs or a cadavar with his chest opened full wide like a side of beef. It is disgusting and it plays with the minds of our youth. I feel that CBS is definitely going for the shock value on a lot of their programs. Fine them heavily and let the American people get back to being able to trust that we won't be having guts and pubic hairs waved in front of our faces.

Thank you
